

The Child Detectives Are Back: Rico, Oskar und der Diebstahlstein

Description

The young detectives, Rico and Oskar, are back with their latest family comedy â??Rico, Oskar und der Diebstahlsteinâ??. Just released in cinemas across Germany today, the film features music supervision from Tracks & Fields.

The film marks the third and final instalment of the Rico and Oskar trilogy movies based on the best-selling book series by German childrenâ??s author Andreas SteinhÃ¶fel. The film trilogy, also known worldwide as â??The Pasta Detectivesâ??. follows the adventures of two child detectives, Rico and Oskar (Anton Petzold and Juri Winkler), and their lives in Berlin.

In â??Rico, Oskar und der Diebstahlsteinâ??. directed by Neele Leana Vollmar, the boys find themselves the unlucky victims of a theft, having had their recently inherited stone collection stolen. Itâ??s now up to the child detectives to try and apprehend the thief.

The film is the second in the trilogy of which Tracks & Fields have licensed music for, having previously worked on the music for the second film, â??Rico, Oskar und das Herzgebrocheâ??. The second film has also been nominated for this yearâ??s prestigious Deutscher Filmpreis.

Tracks & Fields licensed music from several artists for â??Rico, Oskar und der Diebstahlsteinâ??. including the songs â??Are You In Fashionâ?? by French rock band Bye Bye Blondie, â??Only With Youâ?? by Mirage, and the blues tracks â??You Make Me Feel So Goodâ?? by Clarence Nelson and â??Donâ??t Let Me Be the Last to Knowâ?? by Tommy Raye Tucker.

Tracks & Fields also produced the official single of the film, the track â??Wir Wollen Nicht Viel, Wir Wollen Allesâ?? by German-band Roger & Schu. The music video, which Tracks & Fields also co-ordinated the production of, can be seen here.
